Indian Army is the land-based force of the armed forces of India. This unit of armed forces of India has the largest number of recruits and is considered as the third largest active force in the globe. The President of India is the Supreme Commander of the Indian Army whereas the Professional head of the Indian Army is the Chief of Army Staff (COAS). Through this essay on Indian Army, one will have a clearer idea on Indian Army.
```

```
The Indian Army originated from armies of the East India Company's which at last became the British Indian Army and the Princely States Army, which after the independence in 1947, merged into the National Army of India. The units of the Indian Army have fought many battles in the past where they gained honor for the country with their bravery. One will find out more facts about the Indian Army through this essay on Indian Army in English.
```

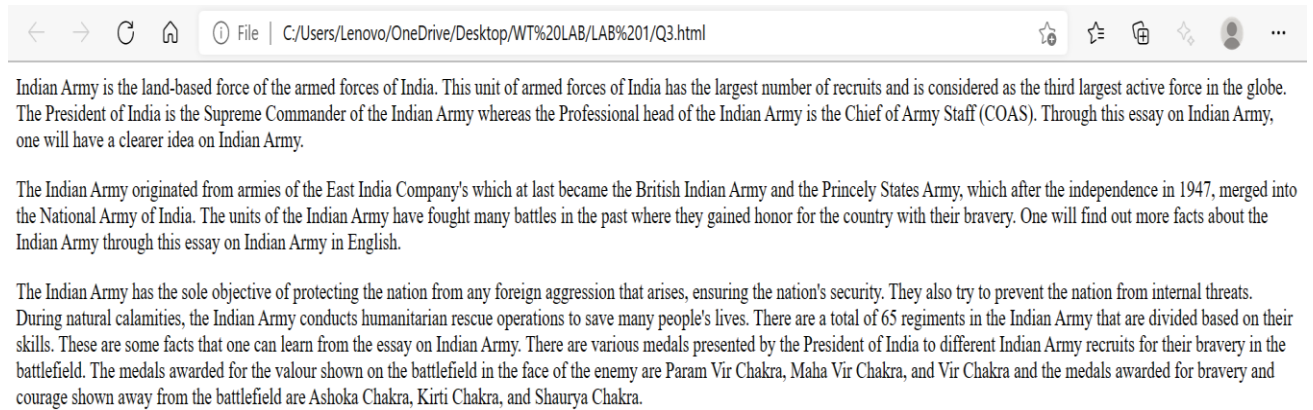

```
 The Indian Army has the sole objective of protecting the nation from any foreign aggression that arises, ensuring the nation's security. They also try to prevent the nation from internal threats. During natural calamities, the Indian Army conducts humanitarian rescue operations to save many people's lives. There are a total of 65 regiments in the Indian Army that are divided based on their skills. These are some facts that one can learn from the essay on Indian Army. There are various medals presented by the President of India to different Indian Army recruits for their bravery in the battlefield. The medals awarded for the valour shown on the battlefield in the face of the enemy are Param Vir Chakra, Maha Vir Chakra, and Vir Chakra and the medals awarded for bravery and courage shown away from the battlefield are Ashoka Chakra, Kirti Chakra, and Shaurya Chakra.
